

MasTec’s Kathleen Butler to Present Golden Rules of Safety at NSC Northeast Conference & Expo May 2

CENTENNIAL, Colo. — May 2, 2019 — MasTec Advanced Technologies today announced that the company’s vice president of human resources, Kathleen Butler, will be a featured speaker at the National Safety Council Northeast Conference & Expo. With co-presenter Larry Pearlman, senior vice president, Marsh Risk Consulting, Butler will speak on the topic of “Saving Lives and Setting Standards: Using ‘Golden Rules’ at MasTec.” The session is scheduled for Thursday, May 2, at 1 p.m. in Room 303 of the David L. Lawrence Convention Center in Pittsburgh.

Butler and Pearlman’s session will explore how MasTec identified both high-frequency and high-severity events across the organization and turned that analysis into practical rules that resulted in double-digit decreases in both injury rates and property damage. The speakers will review the steps for developing a case for change regarding safety performance, aligning business leaders to a new safety agenda, engaging employees and defining safety expectations, and establishing clear consequences for rule noncompliance.

“At MasTec, safety is part of our DNA. By adopting a safety-conscious culture, we’re building utmost confidence and trust with our clients, brands that rely on us to provide top-shelf installation for their technologies and services,” Butler said. “We’re very proud of the results we’ve achieved with our safety program, and we’re looking forward to sharing our best practices with the audience at the NSC conference. It’s also my pleasure to be presenting with Larry, who represents one of the country’s leading risk management consultancies.”
